

Mike Daines
30 April 2018

A Change of Crew

New faces to steer the ANRC

It's all change at the Association of Nene River Clubs (ANRC) with the standing down of popular Captain John Brown, from his position after ten years at the helm.

Also vacating their positions at the recent AGM were the organisations secretary Karen Scrivener and treasurer Paul Scrivener.

Taking over as Captain is Adrian Cleave, Jeff Walters as Vice Captain, Graham Rogers as Secretary, John Harris as Treasurer and Jenny Sullivan is the new Membership Secretary. A new Honorary title of Rear Captain was also agreed and bestowed upon John Brown to reflect his years of support for the organisation.

In his acceptance speech as the new Captain Adrian Cleve said, "I have some big shoes to follow and would like to thank John his wife Sue and their family who have tirelessly supported everything the ANRC has been involved in over many years. I would also like to express our grateful thanks to Karen for all your hard work as Secretary, a good meeting cannot be achieved without a great secretary so thank you together with Paul and your family you have also worked tirelessly for the ANRC."

He added, "I would also like to thank all of the Reps from our member clubs on the river, this is the Clubs' Association and with representatives from all the Clubs attending the Bi-monthly meetings it's a great way of sharing what's going on in the clubs with each other and also recent discussions your representatives have been having with the Environment Agency and other official bodies. We all value the team input and involving everyone is surely the way forward."

ends....

Note: The Association of Nene River Clubs, is an umbrella organisation for the boat clubs on the River Nene. It provides Liaison between the clubs and other bodies such as the Environment Agency, Royal Yachting Association, Inland Waterways Association and the Association of Waterways Cruising Clubs.